

Systematic Issues in the HiRes Spectral Measurements

Hires collaboration

Abstract. The High Resolution Fly's Eye (HiRes) detector observes and measures properties of the highest energy cosmic rays using the atmospheric uorescence technique. In this talk, the systematic effects associated with this technique will be described. The impact of these systematic effects on the measurement of the energy spectrum will also be discussed.
